“ D,

Words. We love(d) words and those words helped us through so many different emotions as we grew from young ladies to young women, and finally as we grew to strong women. Did we agree on everything? No. But who always want a to agree on everything? My problem now is that for all of the words - I have none. You - my stubborn, independent, loyal, loving, fierce friend - you were my sister. The one person who never judged, the one person who could make it alright with a night of Doritos and Pepsi and Molly Hatchet. We lost our way for a bit, and lost each other for a bit, but I found my way back home and found you. I'm mad. I'm mad life took you away.

I love you. Will always love you. And D, I don't think you know just how many people do love you.

I'll see you on the other side. Dream a dream for me, weave a dream for you, and let me know what's out there.

Dawn.

Dannette was a wonderful person. Anyone who knew her loved her. I remember spending time at the trailer park with her, we would ride our bikes around the trailer court, and we would go skating at the Rollardome . We always had fun! I will cherish these memories forever. You will be missed! R.I.P. Dannette!
