A few years ago Harold was drafted by his good friend Vagn Pedersen to help with a project at our warehousing business Standard Distribution Co. This lasted for some time and involved some very physical work which men half Harold's age would have struggled with. Nonetheless these two warriors kept at it and amazed everyone with their work ethic and skill level. That was my first contact with Harold and it made a very favorable impression on me; in addition, Harold was a warm and genuine man who people felt very comfortable around. I was deeply saddened to learn of his passing; we lost an exceptional person.
