“ From the family of Orlin H Markussen (1922-1999), Margaret's first cousin, we send our condolences to a wonderful woman. She had visited with my father in Florida during her journeys, and I stopped and saw her on my move from Utah to North Carolina six years ago. We spoke on the phone a few times since then and I have always admired her. She is in a better place now, somewhere she wanted to be for a long time, so I'm happy for her. She will be missed, however!

“ In the summer of 1978, when Aunt Margie a mere youngster at age 67, I had the privilege of traveling around Europe with her and my dad and mom (Margie's sister-in-law Ann Cundy Schantz). For years after, Aunt Margie would share memories of that trip when we would visit or talk on the phone. At some point, I realized that her love of travel was more than an inspiration to me, it was also a example of how to travel. Aunt Margie was interested in new experiences and took a joy in learning about different cultures. She also had an eye for the quirkly little things that often were the stuff of great memories. For example, when we visited her dad's hometown in Denmark, she pointed out that we were probably in the pastry capital of the world becauser about every third building on the main street was a bakery, adding that her love for a good cup of coffee and a pastry was probably heritary. I took it as a key to her longevity.

Aunt Margie will be greatly missed. She and Uncle John loved to harvest wild asparagus and make crab meat salad. They enjoyed going to the Bay of Fundy or to Florida where they appreciated the seafood and the walks on the beaches.

More than anything, I will always remember that Aunt Margie never forgot one of our kids' birthdays. This is just one way of saying that her interest in our lives always made us feel special in the best sense of that term. Aunt Margie had the special gift of elevating others, a gift that will be a legacy for those of us who had the privilege of having her in our lives.

“ Aunt Margie was such a special person in the lives of my brothers and myself. She was an aunt by marriage, but that didn't matter to us; she was always so interested in what we were doing even as the family grew and as she continued to thrive even after she passed the 100 mark. She was always generous and kind, and fun to be around. We loved her stories about the family and related to her travels. I live in California, but fortunately my husband and I had a very good visit with her just before her 110th birthday in July. We'll miss you!!

“ Margaret and my mother, Emma Jensen, we're very good friends who enjoyed doing fun things together. We have always tried to stop and visit Margaret when we were in Cedar Falls. She was sharp, witty, and full of interesting and informative information. We will miss her dearly but we know she is In the loving arms of our Jesus.

“ I met Margaret after my dear grandmother died. She was a really good friend of hers. Because of that I felt that she kind of filled that void for me, stepping in as a "grandmother" for me. She was always so vibrant when I visited her and so appreciated all of the cards and pictures I would send. She was a classy lady and will be missed.

“ Jensen. The last time we visited with her was about three years ago. She knew us, knew we were from Tennessee and we had a great visit. She was a remarkable woman with a wonderful memory. She was ready to be with her Lord and I thank God for her wonderful long life.
