“ I will always miss her and love her. She was such a dear to me. I did her hair for nearly 30 years and I always looked forward to seeing her. Lately I have been sad thinking it had been awhile since I'd seen her and I wondered why. I love the way she was so outspoken. I love the way she would tear up when she would get to the salon and would hug me. I love the way she would smile. This picture of her doesn't do this woman justice. Sylvia was a pretty woman who always took good care of her figure. She was an energetic, young at heart, busy woman who never went grey haired. She never stopped moving. She was a very hard worker. She would shovel her own driveway till she was into her 90's and mowed her lawn as well. I am sad that I won't see her again, but I am so happy that she will join her late husband of whom she spoke so often, with kindness and sadness due to his passing and whom she loved with all her heart and soul. I love you, Sylvia. I miss you already.
