“ Hey Daddy,

You've been gone now just a few days and I miss you so much. I know that that the aches and pain of your loss will fade in time but my memory of the great times we shared and your ever-present spirit will always live on.

I wanted you to know that we have been celebrating your life this week. Everyone has been beside mom to provide her with Love and support. So many people have been reaching out and helping mom during this time. She is sorrowful understanding that you are gone and yet she is so joyful and comforted by knowing that you are home now with Jesus and all of your loved ones that have gone home before you.

I have been thinking a lot about all of the things that I have learned from you and the ways that you have inspired me. I want you to know that I am who I am because of you. You are the best father anyone could have asked for.

Stories shared by family and friends have also given me even more insight to your passions, your friends and your childhood.

The times you have taught me about Love, politics, economics, working hard, following your dreams and so many areas of life, in general, will be with me forever. I have always admired your courage and conviction to your ideals even though I didn't always agree, you taught me to always think things through.

Dad, I have learned so much from you.

You will be happy to know that I went for a drive around my old paper route as I wrote part of this and still remember you walking with me on the opposite side of the streets...memories I will never forget. I felt as though I could feel you there with me.

I know you are in Heaven now.

With the joy of life comes the inevitable certainty of death and you have reminded us all that we all need to appreciate every moment, every day, that we have been given on this earth. I promise to work on that and to live the good life that we were intended to live. You did that Dad in so many ways and you did it well. You made me so proud to be around you. You have touched so many lives throughout your life and I am glad that I am your son.

I just want you to always remember that I love you VERY VERY VERY VERY VERY Much and that you will be with me and in my heart forever until we meet again in Heaven.

Love Always and Forever and Ever,

Your Son Bradley

“ My father brought me into this world. I have a lifetime of memories of this wonderful father. When I was born the doctor said I looked like my dad. I was called dad's shadow. I was raised in a christian home. It was a thing that was important thing that his children had a christian upbringing. They changed churches to give us christian programs for his children. As you grow up you never know if your parent follows christ...which is an acceptance of jesus christ. when going through his tool box from work, he had a bible in that tool box. I'm sure at alot of breaks he was reading Gods word. I opened the bible and learned he indeed had accepted Christ as his lord and savior, thanks to dear friend mike Christie. As I walked my own journey, some of my thoughts, he would ask my" is that the christian way?" Last year he said to me" Brian, I am proud of your strong faith" in the next few days we will be saying good by to his earthly body. Dont be sad. Dont cry. Celebrate his life, how he touched you, the memory of your time with my father! celebrate a new life with our heavenly father! God promises us that if we believe and follow christ we will join those who passed before us. Dad I am missing you...but God is giving the strength to me to be there for my mom. I love you! your son, brian
